LONDON SAVES COAL
LONDON, Oct. 11.—London street lighting is being cut down to an extent that will save more than one-half of the gas and electricity used in prewar days. This great economy, however, is small compared with the enormous coal deficit that has to be made up.
The scheme provides for only half the number of lamps used in prewar days. In outer London large economies have taken place. Where 100 lamps were alight before the war there may be now only from ten to twenty. In many outer areas no street lamps are at present in use.

SUBS SINK THREE SHIPS; YANKS DIE
for horses, are believed to have been slain, mainly by shell fire, when the American steamer Ticonderoga, formerly the German ship Camilla Rickmers, was torpedoed and shelled 1,700 miles off the Atlantic coast. The story of her destruction, brought to this port by seventeen men who were rescued from an open boat, is a tale of relentless murder by the commander of the U-boat. Launching a torpedo into the side of the Ticonderoga, after she had been forced to leave a convoy, the submarine commander followed the ship as she tried to steam away, and at a range of a mile began spraying her with shrapnel. The Ticonderoga's gun crews went to their stations, but both guns were quickly shot away. The crew then tried to take to the boats, but the U-boat's cannon were turned on the lifeboats, and they were torn to splinters. One boat was lowered, while the submarine's guns hurled shells at it. As the vessel was disappearing, men in the one boat successfully launched tried to pull away, while a hurricane of shells burst over them. The boat was then ordered alongside the raider, which tied it by a line. Conversation in progress, it was said, when suddenly the officers disappeared into the U-boat and the submarine submerged. Only the paring of the line saved the boat from being drawn after the pirate. The Ticonderoga had fallen behind her convoy on the way to France. It was about 1,700 miles off the American coast, when—but let one of the survivors repeat the story: "The Ticonderoga, which was formerly the German steamship Camilla Rickmers, of 5,300 tons gross, and which was equipped with 8-inch guns, developed engine trouble. She fell behind despite every effort to keep up with the convoy. When about 1,700 miles from the American coast a torpedo struck her, although the submarine had not been sighted. It soon appeared half a mile away. We opened fire with our two guns, but the U-boat, which was equipped with 8-inch guns, quickly silenced them. Then it began spraying the ship with shrapnel, riddling her eight boats. Brandished Revolver. "One of our men went to the submarine and said, 'For God's sake, stop it.' But the U-boat commander produced a revolver in answer and told him to swim back or he would shoot him. "There were seventeen in our boat. It was the only boat that would float. We were compelled to row to the submarine and tie fast while its guns continued to spray shrapnel over the ship, whose men fell wounded or dead by the score. The leader of our boat was asked some questions which he refused to answer and the submarine suddenly submerged. "We should have been swamped, save that the painter parted. After the submarine left us we battled for life for four days before being picked up. We tried to tow the raft bearing the other men but the rope parted in the night and the next day we were unable to find them."

300 MISSING FROM TORPEDOED SHIP
AN ENGLISH PORT, Oct. 11.—Tales of new atrocities were being told here today, as the story of the sinking of the Japanese steamship Hiranomaru was pieced out from the pitifully small number of passengers and crew who were saved. Nearly 300 are missing. The attack of the submarine was without warning. Not a boat could be swung over the side of the stricken vessel in time for any one to get aboard. Only the swift response of an American destroyer to the calls for aid flashed out in the brief moments left to the wireless made it possible for twenty-nine persons to be rescued. The submarine remained in the vicinity and fired two torpedoes at the destroyer, which ignored the pirate until the crew picked up the struggling victims. Then she turned, firing shots and dropping depth bombs. Attacked, the U-boat fled. Five Japanese women, two nurses, and three children were among those drowned.

Why So Tired, Weak—"All Worn Out"?
Does any little exertion tire you out? Do you feel weak, nervous, "all unstrung"? Suffer daily backache, dizziness and sick headaches? You shouldn't!
Too many women drag along day in and day out, thus handicapped. And they usually think it due to some supposed "female trouble" instead of the kidneys which are likely at fault. Weak kidneys cause many queer aches, pains and kidney irregularities. Don't wait! Even a slight kidney weakness may turn into gravel, dropsy or Bright's disease. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have brought thousands of weak, tired women back to health.

These Are Washington People:

Mrs. Charles White, 429 M Street S. E., says: "I had a great deal of trouble with lame back. A heavy, dull pain in the small of my back kept me in constant misery. Many mornings I got up feeling more tired than when I went to bed. I was troubled by shortness of breath and dizzy spells came over me when I had to put my hand on the wall to keep from falling over. Three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Hawken's Drug Store, greatly benefited me."

Mrs. B. V. Moran, 325 M Street S. E., says: "I suffered constantly from dull pains across the small of my back. I couldn't stand up very long at a time before I had to sit down in order to ease the pain in my back. I felt tired all the time and was so nervous, I could fly. My kidneys were weak. Mornings I felt more tired than when I went to bed. After I had taken a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, I began to feel more like myself again. My back was less painful and my kidneys acted normally. I have had no occasion to use any kidney medicine since and I consider myself cured."

FINDS SELF; REWARDED
LINCOLN, Ill., Oct. 11.—Marshall Turley, aged seventeen, will himself collect a $100 reward offered by his father for information of his whereabouts. Turley disappeared about a year ago. His father advertised in vain for the boy.
A few days ago he received a letter from France. It was from his son. The boy explained he tried to enlist before he left home, but was rejected on account of his age. He then de-camped to the Canadian army. Overseas service followed shortly afterward. His father is so pleased at his son's patriotism he declared the boy shall receive the reward.

"HAM AN" PRICES ADVANCE AGAIN
Ham and egg prices in Washington continue to soar, according to Clarence R. Wilson, District Food Administrator, in his weekly fair price list issued today.
Fancy ham has increased from 37½ to 40 cents a pound, according to the pound wholesale list. Select fresh candied eggs are now 65 to 70 cents a dozen wholesale instead of 60 to 65 cents a dozen, last week's price. Current receipt eggs have advanced 5 cents a dozen, and are now 62 to 65 cents.
All other items on the fair price list remain stationary with the exception of best table butter, which has dropped 2 cents to 63 to 68 cents a pound, and process butter in prints which has advanced from 49 to 54 cents to 54 to 56 cents a pound.

RABBIT MEAT APPROVED
CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 11.—Rabbit meat now will take its place in Cleveland and other western markets as a household food along with other standard meats.
The raising of rabbits for meat is just starting in Cleveland. Secretary H. M. Adolph, of the Cleveland Rabbit Breeders' Association, declared, following a movement that has recently been started in the far West.
"There is no reason why rabbit meat should not become as popular as any other meat," Mr. Adolph said, "for when it is produced on a stock farm basis it is as delicate as any."

DRAFT WINS LONG RACE
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 11.—A journey of 6,000 miles from Chanaral, Chile, to Kansas City, to enlist in the United States army came to naught here when Clay Roberts, a mining engineer, arrived home and found he could not enlist. At the time he left Chile voluntary enlistments were permitted, and he did not learn of the order stopping them until he arrived home.
He had been in charge of railroad and bridge construction for a large copper mining company in Chile for some time.

TOO MUCH REALISM
LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11.—While doing a stunt for a moving picture in Venice, Bill Hubbard and Bobbie Haines narrowly escaped drowning. The picture being taken was that of an automobile which had caught on fire and was run off of the end of the Woodward avenue pier into the ocean.
Hubbard and Haines were in the machine when it shot from the end of the pier. Both men had to be rescued. They were exhausted when pulled in. Haines was badly cut from the barnacles on the pier piling.

ESCAPES LEGAL DEATH
CARLISLE, Pa., Oct. 11.—Learning of the proceeding just in time to reach this section and identify himself in court William Seaver, formerly of Southampton township, escaped being declared legally dead, and secured a share in his father's estate.
He has been away from home for nineteen years, and proceedings were begun to have him declared legally dead.

400 LOST IN SINKING
AN IRISH PORT, Oct. 11.—Four hundred and eight persons are believed to have been lost when the Irish mail steamship Leinster was torpedoed and sunk off the Irish coast Thursday. The ship was torpedoed twice in quick succession and disappeared within a short time. The Leinster was proceeding from Dublin to Holyhead.
The Leinster was a packet, the property of the City of Dublin Steam Packet Company, and was registered at Dublin. She was of 2,646 gross tons.
